Whalen Says We Are Entitled Pier and Better Bus Service

AFTER TRAVEL—CONVINCED OF ASSET OF FISHING PIER
ELLSWORTH FLOYD WHALEN
Miramonte Junior College

Atascadero, California, February 9, 1936

Editor H. H. Hartvigsen
The Ocean Beach News,
1922 Bacon Street,
Ocean Beach, California.

Dear Editor Hartvigsen:

I have just finished reading the Ocean Beach News today, Sunday. You know how well I enjoy reading all of the news in my home community and I want you to know that I appreciate your sending The News to me every week. I am somewhat disappointed to see that construction on our fishing pier has not materially progressed yet. After touring the State coastline and having an opportunity to observe benefits gained to communities both large and small thru the construction of fishing piers to attract tourists and permanent residents, I am convinced without doubt that Ocean Beach and the people of San Diego would benefit both socially and economically thru the immediate construction of such a pleasure pier within the community at the most desirable location.

I sympathize with the Ocean Beach people in their efforts to obtain a better and more safe bus service for the Point Loma High School students. In very small communities here in central California there are excellent school buses with adequate room for all students. I feel that the citizens of Point Loma are justified in seeking a bus service that is reasonably safe and sufficient to care for the growing needs of Point Loma's growing student population.

As the months go by, I am still waiting to see the Federal Government and the State organize forces to start some actual development work on the Mission Bay Park area. Have Sacramento and Washington, D. C. forgotten us, or have all the plans been formulated for the Park's development with only the usual red tape and time holding up progress?

I hope you and your family are all well and healthy and may the New Year bring you all continued happiness.

Sincerely yours,
Ellsworth F. Whalen.

LELAND STANFORD, ATTORNEY SPEAKER HERE WEDNESDAY

At Kiwanis luncheon Wednesday, Jake Watson was chairman of the day's program.

Griffith Lloyd of the Strand Radio Co. was a guest of Dr. I. W. Parks.

President Felt spoke shortly on Kiwanis activities.

Leland Stanford, San Diego attorney, commenced his talk with George Washington saying the unfinished business of our first president's administration had been continued and there was always an incompleteness of economic problems, then he dealt with the advancement of medicine and science as well as the unlimited possibilities for development in these fields.

Point Loma Beats Coronado High 28-15

Advancing closer and closer to the realization of their championship hopes, the Point Loma High school basketball team defeated Coronado High school 28-15 last Friday night at Tent City, in the semi-final round of Metropolitan league play. The Pointers, as usual, were behind one point at the half, but they hit their stride in the third quarter, and maintained a lead to the end. Lutes and Gonsalves lead the Loman scoring with 8 points each.

The Point Loma Bs, playing true to ability for the first time this season, turned in a 25-9 upset over the Coronado Bs in the preliminary game. Rock and P. Isom led the scoring with 8 and 7 points respectively.

Tonight at 7 o'clock, Point Loma High school's basketball team take on the powerful Escondido High quintet on the Escondido court. This game will be a perfect climax for the Metro loop competition this year, because both teams have maintained an undefeated tie for first place thru out the season. The game, of course, is a toss-up, but the Lomans are ready and anxious to bring home the championship title for the first time in long, long years.

The Pointer Bs will also have a tough game on schedule, for they are tied with Escondido for second place in the loop. The Bs, despite their erratic early season playing, are believed to have hit their stride at last, and they have a good chance to cop runner-up position.

Following are the standing for both divisions of the Metropolitan basketball loop:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Point Loma	6	0	1.000
Escondido	6	0	1.000
Sweetwater	4	2	.667

FREE TRAFFIC SHOW STRAND THEATRE SATURDAY

The traffic division of the San Diego Police department in cooperation with Boy Scouts troops 28 and 29 of Ocean Beach will put on an Educational Traffic Safety program at the Strand theatre, Ocean Beach, at 10 a. m., Saturday, February 22nd. Merritt and Thomas Remington of the traffic division of the San Diego Police department in theatres in various parts of the city. This program includes a lecture on traffic safety as well as (weather permitting) actual demonstrations of how traffic accidents really happen, this demonstration will take place after the show in front of the Strand theatre. This is a free show and is being put on for the school children of Ocean Beach. We owe our sincere thanks and appreciation to Mr. Gruber for being the first theatre manager in San Diego sponsoring a show of this kind.

W. P. Mayer, Superintendent of Outdoor Relief, of the San Diego County Department of Public Welfare, will address the Ocean Beach Social-Civic Forum, Tuesday evening February 25 at 7:30 p. m. on the highly important subject "The Tax-payers Relation to the Social Problems of Today".

The forum is held in the auditorium of the Ocean Beach grammar school, 4741 Santa Monica avenue, and will be held regularly every Tuesday evening during the school semester.

Mr. Mayer will discuss California's transient problem and the much-discussed aid to the aged program of the state and federal governments (not the Townsend plan).

These forums are conducted by the adult education department of the San Diego city schools, under the supervision of Paul Klein, assisted by Dr. J. C. Falk. The public is invited, and there is no fee of any kind.

THE EDITOR THANKS--

Son Austin for his devotion to the print shop and family during the past two weeks illness of the proprietor. Getting out the paper these two issues devolved mostly on his shoulders and was capably done. The time put in being taken away from studies at high school. Also the other high school boys who helped at the shop.

The good wife Lillian for her devoted attention to all details. Keeping the home fires burning and assisting in the care of both her parents, ill with pneumonia, running to the hospital to see her spouse, then seeing he was returned home safely and received proper care after he got there.

To the Ocean Beach Kiwanis club and North Shore Political club for their beautiful flowers received at the hospital together with greeting cards, letters of cheer and many remembrances from friends from National City to North Los Angeles.

For the good wishes of all our friends and their assistance whenever they found they could lend a hand of usefulness.

George Bryans Re-elected President Y. M. N. S. Pol. Club

At a well attended meeting of the Young Men's North Shore Political club at Baybrige cafe last Friday, the following officers were elected to serve for the coming year:

George Bryans, president; Calvin Burns, vice president; Andrew Ozmon, secretary; Marshall Malcolm, treasurer; and Merritt Bryans and Bud Bethel, sergeants at arms.

Bus facilities for the high school students, the fishing pier, a new high school and development of Mission bay were the main topics of discussion. A committee of four was appointed to co-operate with a combined group of all North Shore clubs in the interest of developing Mission bay and a resolution was passed condemning the School Board for not taking some action to relieve the congested condition on the present school busses.

The club looks forward to a big year in '36 and invites all men interested in joining to get in touch with a member and join now.

San Diego Paper Says Cowboy Collins Killed Pier Project

FISHING PIER
(San Diego Herald)

Among the mysteries of the universe is the existence of organisms, animate and inanimate, that probably have some good part to play in mundane affairs but that apparently have been created simply to make life a hell of hard matter for the rest of us.

Many of these animalcules stand on their two hind legs, wear clothes, belong to Rotary and bray like Balam's ass. At the further extremity of what they sit on, they have a lump that passes or a head and they exude an aura that is as irritating to the skin of the normal human being as nettles or poison ivy. Fated always to be without human sympathy, they therefore are without those contacts which bring the respect of their fellowmen, and they live in an atmosphere of animosity, belligerency and plain meanness.

Three or four of these bacteria have practically killed the WPA project for a fishing pier at Ocean Beach. This project, which would have released more than $100,000 in new money in San Diego and which would have provided one of the most needed improvements on the ocean front, has been hit on the head by one Cowboy Collins and a couple of other germs, and altho more than 10,000 people have petitioned for it and the city council has given it an unanimous endorsement, Collins and his crowd have lied so beautifully about it—have brought all the forces of mendacity and Munchausenism so deftly against it—that it looks like the fight for the pier will have to start all over again.

We remember that the same thing was done on the bay front in San Diego a few years ago by the same form of microscopic life that infests part of Sunset Cliffs. The federal government agreed to dredge for San Diego a yacht harbor. This yacht harbor would have sheltered all the yachts on the coast, it would have provided anchorage for the fishing fleet and it would have brought to this city the annual Pacific Coast Regatta. A couple of property owners on the bay front who thought that God had created the Harbor of the Sun exclusively for them, took their heads out of the oat box and kicked with such mulish persistency that the government dropped its offer in disgust.

Result, San Diego with its climate and its bay has no yacht harbor and probably will never have one.

Result at Ocean Beach, there probably will not be any fishing pier.

It probably will go to Long Beach or Santa Barbara or some other town where steady applications of disinfectant keep these insect irritants on the run.

The Herald hopes that the people of Ocean Beach will renew the fight and that they prove that in this democratic country of ours, the will of the majority is law.

After all, God made millions of people before He ever thought of Collins and his ilk, and so long as we are dealing in probabilities, we may assume that He is probably sorry that in an unguarded moment He made them.

The fishing pier should go in at Sunset Cliffs and at the entrance to it there should be a life-size statue of Cowboy Collins kicking because somebody is trying to put a saddle on him.

Fletcher Still Working For Mission Bay

Letters received by The News this week from Senator Ed Fletcher show his continued vigorous effort to have the improvement of Mission Bay State Park go ahead, however, delay after delay has been presented and it seems to us that until a good start is made, nothing definite can be foreseen.

The Senator also encloses letters from Harry L. Garber which retracts information he gave to the San Diego Sun "that the Twenty-second Agricultural District grounds were bought from Senator Fletcher, republican." and

A letter from James E. Franks, president of the 22nd Dist. Agr. Association the first paragraph of

The Ocean Beach Hardware, 1921 Bacon street, failed to open its doors Monday this week, the proprietor, John Harrison retiring to his ranch property near Harbison canyon.

Principal creditors of the store yesterday were undecided as to its future, whether it would reopen or not, being the problem under consideration.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Senator Borah Throws His Hat in the Republican Ring—Administration's Revamped Farm Bill Introduced—Farley Assails Liberty League.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

WILLIAM E. BORAH, the liberal Republican senator from Idaho, is now a full-fledged candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination. He formally put himself in the running by announcing that he would enter the primary in Ohio which will be held May 12. That state requires that the candidate shall declare himself in writing, and this Mr. Borah said he would do.

The senator's statement follows: "After a thorough survey of the Ohio situation I am convinced that the people of that state should be given an opportunity to express their choice in the Presidential primary on May 12. Under the so-called 'favorite son' plan this privilege is denied them."

"To obtain an expression of popular will it is my intention to place at least eight candidates or delegates at large in the field."

"I shall make a number of speeches in Ohio and present the issues as I see them."

It is understood by his friends that the senator will make a contest for delegates in almost every state having a preference primary. He says the G. O. P. conventions have been dominated by the old conservative leaders through the operations of the "favorite son" scheme and this control he intends to destroy if possible. It is his opinion that only a liberal Republican can defeat President Roosevelt next fall, and few will deny that he is the outstanding liberal in his party.

IN HIS press conference President Roosevelt announced that a billion dollars' worth of lending authorized by acts of congress would not be carried out. For example, the Home Owners' Loan corporation has passed on nearly all proposed loans and will not need between 500 million and a billion dollars, the President declared. Applications for HOLC loans closed last June 27. Outstanding loans of the agency amount to near 2 billion 900 million dollars.

HEADS of various government agencies concerned with housing have submitted to the President a nationwide, low cost program based on cheap federal loans to local communities. According to authoritative sources, this undertaking would contemplate:

1. A long-range building program.
  2. Interest rates perhaps as low as 1 per cent on federal loans.
  3. Construction of facilities for as many as one million families.
- Full control of management and condemnation proceedings would be lodged with local officials under the plan, the aim being to decentralize activities from Washington.

CONFORMING to the request of the President, both senate and house passed measures repealing the cotton, tobacco and potato control acts. In the house nine radicals and John J. O'Connor of New York voted "no" as a protest against the Supreme court after Marcano of New York had delivered a violent attack on that tribunal.

Following this action, the senate agriculture committee rewrote and introduced the administration's substitute farm bill. The revamped measure provides that the federal government would make grants to the states just as is done now under the roads act. The states in turn would designate some agency, to be approved by the secretary of agriculture, to distribute the money to individual farmers. This money would be distributed on a formula taking into consideration:

- Acres of crops.
- Acres of soil improving or erosion preventing crops.
- Changes in farming practices.
- Percentage of the normal production of any one or more agriculture commodities designated by the secretary of agriculture, which equals that percentage of the normal national production of the commodity.

EVERY Presidential possibility these days must have some plan for the salvation of the American farmer. Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, often mentioned for the Republican nomination, now brings out his permanent farm program which he says would divorce the farm problem from "bureaucratic control" in Washington.

His plan would embrace erosion control, soil conservation, and restoration of fertility of lands. Administration would be handled jointly by the states and the federal government in a manner similar to highway construction.

The Dickinson program, similar to that advocated by former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, includes payment of the balance due signers of AAA contracts, a higher tariff on farm products, continued corn loans, and extension of farm mortgages at a low rate of interest.

INFLATIONISTS in congress, led by Senator Thomas of Oklahoma and Representative Patman of Texas, were all prepared to wage a great battle to force the printing of new money. They were just waiting for the introduction of a new tax program, declaring they would try to block such legislation if it was attempted. It was believed that, if the tax issue were not raised soon, the fight would start over the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgaging re-financing bill.

The forces behind this bill, which calls for the refinancing of farm indebtedness on easy terms through the issuance of up to $3,000,000,000 in new money, had succeeded in getting 215 signatures on a petition to force a vote in the house. Only 218 were needed and its backers were pressing for the three names.

Administration leaders were confident they could defeat the inflationists by a wide margin.

SENATOR VANDENBERG of Michigan has grave doubts of the economic necessity or value of the ship canal that is being dug across central Florida, and offered in the senate commerce committee a resolution for investigation by a special committee. In support of his move he produced letters from eleven companies operating steamships saying they would not use the canal even if no tolls were charged. They asserted the expense of employing canal pilots added to the risk of damage to ships would offset saving in navigation costs.

Work was started some time ago on the canal, which, if completed, will cost between $140,000,000 and $200,000,000.

TWO attacks on the American Liberty league were made in one day. The strongest was by Postmaster General Farley who spoke at a Roosevelt dinner in Miami, Fla. "The Liberty league," said Farley, "would rule America. It would squeeze the worker dry in his old age and cast him like an orange rind into the refuse pail. It would continue the infamous policy of using the agencies of government to create a plutocracy that would perpetuate the sorry business of the Mellons and the Morgans in reducing 95 per cent of the people to the status of serfs at the mercy of the exploiters at the top."

"The American Liberty league speaks as conclusively for the reactionaries and their party as do Mr. Hoover, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Manufacturers' association."

"Its program is frankly plutocratic and asks for the rule of money over men, as during the 12 years before Roosevelt's administration."

"It demands that workers and farmers be 'put in their places' and made to understand that they are mere hewers of wood and carriers of water."

"Its idea of the 'American way' is to maintain a system under which all the wealth of the nation was being concentrated in the hands of a very few—5 per cent of the people."

At their convention in Washington the United Mine Workers also took a crack at the Liberty league, adopting a resolution denouncing the organization as "inimical to the interests and people of the United States."

FIVE of the members of the new federal reserve board were inducted into office with due ceremony. A sixth, Ralph W. Morrison of Texas, was to arrive later and be sworn in. The seventh member had not yet been named by President Roosevelt. Mariner S. Eccles, appointed chairman, and M. S. Szymczak of Chicago, were holdovers.

The others besides Morrison are Ronald Ransom, Atlanta banker; John McKee of Ohio, former chief bank examiner for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Joseph A. Broderick of New York. The reserve board, which has been called "a supreme court of banking," has powers unparalleled in American financial history. Among these is authority to double present margins that member banks are required to maintain against deposits; the dominant voice on the open-market committee—which charts the system's participation in the government bond market, and over which it had no authority under the former law; power of veto over the heads of the various reserve banks which insure the selection of a president who will co-operate with the board, and the power to fix margins governing relations between banks and brokers.

Whether an oil embargo against Italy could be made effective was the knotty problem confronting a League of Nations committee of experts that met in Geneva. About a dozen countries were represented, but Poland refused to take part on the ground that it exports no oil to Italy, but only to Czechoslovakia.

League authorities said the investigation into practical possibilities of enforcing an oil embargo against Italy, in addition to the present war penalties, was likely to center to a large degree on the attitude of the United States.

UNITED Mine Works of America, in convention in Washington, shouted boisterous defiance at William Green's plea that they drop their campaign for industrial organization.

The A. F. of L. president opened his speech before the 1,700 delegates from the coal pits with a plea for co-operation to prevent a split in the ranks of American labor. The A. F. of L., which favors the craft (or skilled worker) unions, had ordered the miners, led by John L. Lewis, to abandon their committee working for industrial unions.

But as he warmed up to his subject, Mr. Green clashed more directly with the views of the miners and the scattered applause which had greeted his remarks changed to boos and shouts of opposition.

When Lewis arose to reply to Green he was given the support of almost every delegate in the hall.

JOSEPH B. EASTMAN, co-ordinator of transportation, is trying to wipe out an estimated annual waste of $50,000,000 in railroad terminal operations, and announced that he would soon order the unification of terminal facilities in eleven cities. This, he figures, will save the affected railroads at least $800,000 annually. Mr. Eastman had tried unsuccessfully to have the carriers make the changes voluntarily.

The unifications will be ordered at Worcester, Mass.; Mechanicsville, N. Y.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Montgomery, Ala.; Meridian, Miss.; Freeport, Ill.; Des Moines, and Council Bluffs, Iowa; Beaumont, Texas, and Ogden, Utah.

After the first group of orders, Eastman said that, if necessary, he was prepared to compel "other steps of increasing magnitude," but would "stand aside if railroads are able to produce their own momentum."

Unless extended by congress, Eastman's office will expire in June. He has recommended that it be continued at least five years.

ON ORDERS from Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, further investigation of the Lindbergh kidnapping and murder case has been started. Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, assigned two of his star detectives for the inquiry, and has enlisted the aid of federal investigating agencies and the New York police.

The governor wants the investigation to be painstaking and thorough. The reprieve which he granted Hauptmann will expire on February 15. After that date at least four weeks, and perhaps five, will elapse before the date for the execution which will be ordered by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who presided over the trial.

The governor believes that by that time his power of reprieve will have expired in this case, and he will not grant another unless Attorney General David T. Wilentz concurs. Unless new developments warrant it, the attorney general will not agree to further delay in the execution.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, former British prime minister who, together with President Wilson and Clemenceau, was largely responsible for the re-making of the map of the world after the war, now admits that work was not wisely done. Rising in parliament to support a resolution by Lansburg, Laborite, urging Britain to call a world conference to deal with the causes of war, Lloyd George said:

"I do not believe there will be peace in the world until you consider the colonial mandates granted at the conclusion of the World war, when Germany's colonies were split up. Belgium got the best part of German East Africa and the whole of the Congo. Portugal and Holland each got millions of square miles. These countries have tropical territories. On the other hand you have Germany with none, Italy with practically none."

The house of commons rejected the proposal, however, passing instead an amendment expressing confidence that the national government is taking all practical steps possible for the promotion of international prosperity and a better understanding among all peoples.

WILHELM GUSTLOFF, Nazi leader in Switzerland, was assassinated in Davos by David Frankfurter, son of a rabbi and a native of Yugoslavia who told the police he acted on no one's orders and was not connected with any political group. The German government immediately sent to Switzerland a strong protest, stressing that Berlin has often warned the Swiss government of the "dangers of anti-Nazi agitation by the liberal and Marxist press." The net result of the murder is likely to be bad for the Jews, for they may find that Switzerland will not be the hospitable haven for refugees that it has been in the past.

To reduce the danger of clashes between Jews and militant Nazis, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, German minister of propaganda, prohibited all meetings of Jewish cultural associations.

Whether an oil embargo against Italy could be made effective was the knotty problem confronting a League of Nations committee of experts that met in Geneva. About a dozen countries were represented, but Poland refused to take part on the ground that it exports no oil to Italy, but only to Czechoslovakia.

League authorities said the investigation into practical possibilities of enforcing an oil embargo against Italy, in addition to the present war penalties, was likely to center to a large degree on the attitude of the United States.

Do you ever, when you find some problem that you understand, hunt up a book by somebody who does understand it and read it through?

Naturally you would like to get along—to succeed in whatever you are doing.

How can you expect to do that if you don't set the convolutions in that brain of yours at work, and keep it at work till it tires out?

How can you expect to hold a job very long, if the one bright spot in the day is quitting time?

It's all right to go to the picture shows, if you don't go too often.

Play of any kind is good for you, if you don't make too much of a habit.

Remember that in these days there are far more trained men and women than there ever have been before, and that if you don't keep on the alert they will beat you to some of the important places in life.

Keep at work. Keep alert. Don't be afraid that you will have a mental breakdown unless you can spend more time in playing around than you do on the job.

Take care of your diet, and unless you have something serious the matter with you you will be in no danger of breaking down.

Eat sparingly, get plenty of sleep, read intelligently written books, not more than 5 per cent of them novels, keep informed on the activities around you by reading the newspapers regularly, and you will not be haunted with the fear of failure.

Don't ever think about failure. Think about where you want to go, and how to get there.

Above all, don't be jealous if somebody else goes some place where you meant to go.

Concentrate all your efforts to getting there yourself, and if you work hard enough the chances are that you will arrive there.

All this is not going to be easy. But nothing that's worth a rap in this life is easy, or ever will be.

Children learn by asking questions. So do grown-ups, for that matter.

When fathers or mothers are too lazy, or too ignorant to reply willingly and intelligently to the constant queries their offsprings put to them, they need not be surprised and annoyed if the children do not develop any more rapidly than they do.

If your child asks you questions whose answers you do not know, make it a point to enlighten yourself first, and the youngster afterward.

Do not say to him casually: "You wouldn't understand that if I told you, you are too young."

Get up on the subject, and when you know considerably more about it, call in the kid and give him a little instruction.

Never fear that he won't pay any attention to it.

He pays attention to everything he sees, and, if it is something that he is interested in, he will come to you for information.

It is far more important to you than it is to the men or the women who have your child's occupation to direct, to keep his curiosity aroused, and see that it is fed.

As a rule, small children are curious about everything they see.

Don't rebuff them when they ask you about this or that, and the whys and wherefores of it.

Encourage them to come to you with their questions.

Don't talk to them as if they were babies. Explain things. And if you have no knowledge on the subject yourself, find out where it can be found, and let them look it up.

For example, every small child is interested in automobiles.

Tell them how and why by a series of little explosions these machines are made to run.

Better that they should learn from you than from other boys who have very small foundations for their ideas about mechanics.

Bright children educate themselves to a great extent, but you can, if you try, advance their education, and awaken in them a desire to increase it.

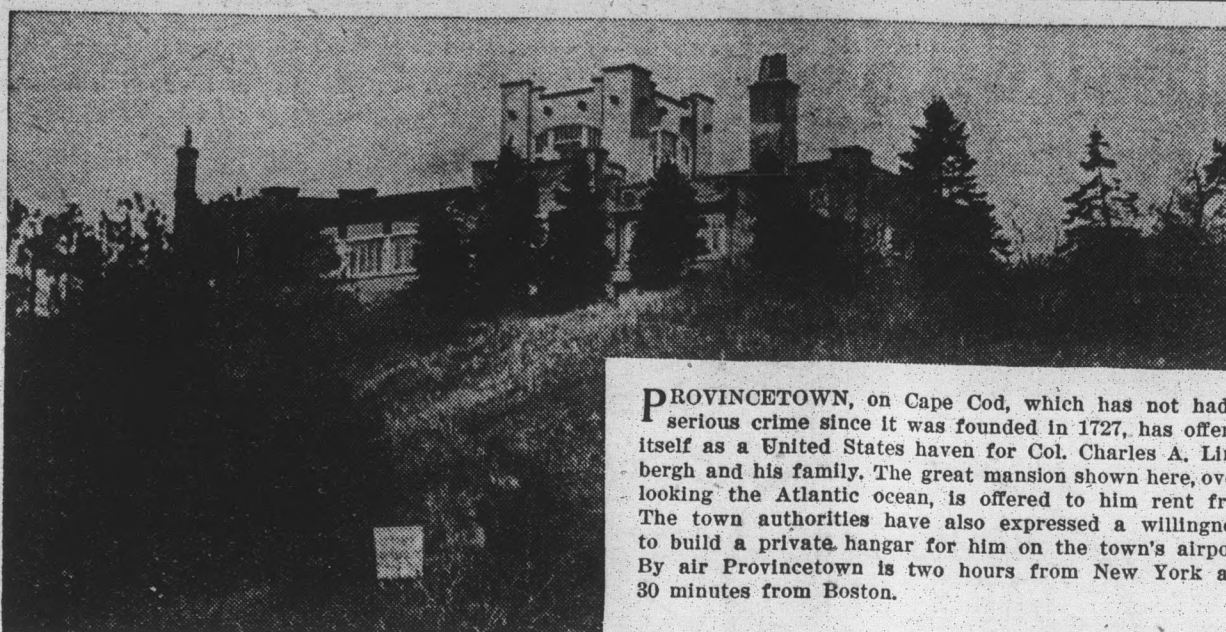

Ten people out of twenty, I think, take the world and all its wonders for granted.

Don't let your children fall into that slovenly way.

Interest them. Encourage them to learn. Point out the way to learn.

And when they grow up you will find that, in all probability, if you are hazy about some subject or other, you can go to them and get the help that you need.

Provincetown Offers a Home to Lindbergh

The great mansion shown here, overlooking the Atlantic ocean, is offered to him rent free. The town authorities have also expressed a willingness to build a private hangar for him on the town's airport. By air Provincetown is two hours from New York and 30 minutes from Boston.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

MR. AND MRS. QUACK ARE STARTLED

IT WAS the evening of the day after the closing of the hunting season of Lightfoot the Deer. Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had gone to bed behind the Purple Hills and the Black Shadows had crept out across the Big River. Mr. and Mrs. Quack were getting their evening meal among the brown stalks of the wild rice along the edge of the Big River. They took turns in searching for the rice grains in the mud. While Mrs. Quack tipped up and seemed to stand on her head as she searched in the mud for rice, Mr. Quack kept watch for possible danger. Then Mrs. Quack took her turn at keeping watch while Mr. Quack stood on his head and hunted for rice.

It was wonderfully quiet and peaceful. There was not even a ripple on the Big River. It was so quiet that they could hear the barking of a dog at a farmhouse a mile away. They were far enough out from the bank to have nothing to fear from Reddy Fox or Old Man Coyote. So they had nothing to fear from anyone save Hooty the Owl. It was for Hooty that they took turns in watching. It was just the hour when Hooty likes best to hunt.

By and by they heard Hooty's hunting call. It was far away in the Green Forest. Then Mr. and Mrs. Quack felt easier and they talked in low, contented voices. They felt that for a while at least there was nothing to fear. Suddenly a little splash out in the Big River caught Mr. Quack's attention. As Mrs. Quack brought her head up out of the water Mr. Quack warned her to keep quiet. Noiselessly they swam among the brown stalks until they could see out across the Big River.

There was another little splash out there in the middle. It wasn't the splash made by a fish; it was a splash made by some one much bigger than any fish. Presently they made out a silver line moving toward them from the Black Shadows. They knew exactly what it meant. It meant that

INVITING DISHES

WHEN cooking carrots add a silver of onion to the vegetable while cooking, and the addition of a stalk of celery will make the dish, when served with a little butter, quite different.

Mutton and Peas. Take a piece of lamb or mutton for stewing, simmer in boiling water with an onion, three cloves, two peppercorns and an eighth of a bay leaf for flavor. When tender, remove the meat to a hot platter and make a gravy of the liquor from the kettle. Strain and add to it a cupful or two of fresh cooked green peas. More seasoning of salt and pepper may be needed and a half teaspoonful of sugar will make the dish much more tasty. Seasonings are always much more effective if added while the food is cooking.

Date Crackers. Put a pound of well-washed dates with a cupful of sugar and a half cupful of water in a saucepan and cook until soft and smooth. Cool. Cream together one cupful each of shortening and brown sugar, two and one-half cupfuls of rolled oats that have been parched to a light brown, add two cupfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of soda in half a cupful of hot water. Mix well, roll out very thin and cut into rounds. Place a spoonful of the fruit on the cookie and cover with another.

Cheese Salad. Dissolve a tablespoonful of gelatin in four tablespoonfuls of hot water, add one-half pound of grated cheese and a pint of whipped cream, season with salt and paprika with a bit of cayenne. Pour into a wet mold and chill. Turn out and cut into slices and serve on lettuce with a snappy mayonnaise dressing.

Piquant Relish. Take one package of lemon-flavored gelatin, dissolve in one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water and three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Add one finely cut pimiento, one-half a green pepper cut fine, one-half cupful of grated horseradish. If the prepared horseradish is used omit the vinegar. Pour into green pepper shells and chill.

THREE DAYS WITHOUT HEAT

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THREE days without heat, while they're fixing the furnace. And so in the kitchen each day we intern us, Or sit by the fireplace and pile on the splinters, Not much like the cordwood of old-fashioned winters. Three days without heat, and the family shivers, Or late in the morning still clings to kivers, And all because something unknown, unsuspected, Went wrong—that a gleeful young salesman detected.

And yet the unfortunate, woe at its summit, Are those who have trouble and learn nothing from it. The greatest misfortune, whatever our sorrow, Is, having it, not to be wiser tomorrow. When furnaces fail, or when anything falters, Let's hope that our viewpoint accordingly alters, Experience teaches us, children or father, Some truth that repays us for all of the bother.

Three days without heat, but again when we get it In living room, dining room, bedroom, I bet it Will make us appreciate that simple blessing

We took without thinking or doubting or guessing. I haven't a doubt there is many a pleasure Our hearts never feel and our minds never measure

We have, all along without thinking about it. (We would, if we had to go three days without it).

Although five feet eight inches tall and broad of shoulder, Edwin M. Stanton, secretary of war under Lincoln, was called "Little Stanton" when he first started practicing law in Cadiz, Ohio. The mighty Stanton, who was also near-sighted, weighed only 125 pounds then, at the age of twenty-two.

Leg Broken, Dog Walks Into Hospital

APPARENTLY struck by a careless motorist, this dog showed unusual sense by walking unattended right into Receiving hospital in Detroit. Rather than disillusion by shipping him to the Humane society, attending physicians accepted "Measles," as he was christened, as a charity patient, and set his broken leg in a cast. The story has an even happier ending, because an orderly immediately adopted the dog as a pet and took him home to convalesce. The photograph shows Dr. Myron Rosenbaum placing the dog's leg in a cast while Nurse Vic Gauthier holds him. Looking on is orderly Eric Newman, who adopted the pup.

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this—and see that you get what you want.

THE FATHER OF OUR COUNTRY

Such a title is a distinct honor for any man. George Washington could never have been paid greater recognition, and his name will live thru the centuries of time, while his dignity and fame will go to his posterity as long as the nation lasts. The character of this great warrior of freedom and independence is the beautiful secret of his achievement and success. He led an honest career, and once he said: "The most enviable of all titles, is that of an honest man."

Next Saturday the nation pays homage to the name of this famous man of character, nobility and statesmanship, celebrating his 204th birthday anniversary. His education was gained from practical experiences, rather than academic learning, but he made good! From the days of his birth on Virginia soil in 1732, he breathed the air of American freedom, which he fought so long and hard to win for his beloved people. Saturated with the Constitutional loyalty which he loved, he gave himself with reserve. Washington was a good surveyor and spent several years staking and mapping out and possessions for Lord Fairfax, the richest land-owner known at the time.

Washington had sacred dreams and aspirations for this new land, all based on the future joys of freedom and independence under a Constitutional program, which he could not give up nor get it out of his head. He loved civilization, and as immigration increased, he felt the determined impulse to carry out his progressive ideas; even though it meant to establish a new freedom by conquest against the bitter royal yoke of English domain.

The accustomed opposition and edict from the throne of the United Kingdom grew more grievous, until Washington conferred with other patriotic individuals who were strong for the same purposes as Washington. The outcome was mutual for their freedom of rights under a Continental Constitution, all resting on the basic law under which their colonies could build for a larger relative happiness, under their own rights and liberties.

Washington was made commander-in-chief by the Continental Congress and assumed full charge of the Continental Army, which was then a poor excuse as a winner of freedom against the royal foe! For more than eight years the terrible struggle was on and no suffering could compare with the tragedies of poverty and death. But the famous surrender of Cornwallis, October 19, 1781, brought victory and independence!

Washington, upon refusing the offer of a throne in American, was made first president of the United States at a Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia, 1787, over which he presided. On April 30, 1789, he was sworn in at Federal Hall, New York City.

MAY HER MEMORY LIVE LONG WITH US

Last week when we received a copy of our own newspaper, in the Scripps Memorial hospital at La Jolla, recuperating from pneumonia, we were saddened to read of the death of Mrs. Victoria Kunz. The thought immediately came that her good work on earth must now cease though others should continue where she left off.

Many Ocean Beach people never knew Mrs. Kunz, and in not knowing had missed a fine inspiration. We had known her quite well for four years and every meeting gave us a little more insight into the beautiful soul, who gave her every day service to someone who needed moral uplift or material aid in time of stress.

This woman of frail stature but strong heart came to make this city her home 16 years ago. She early bought vacant lots, established a modest home and was interested in our material and spiritual growth. She contributed faithfully to the local Chamber of Commerce, assisted dozens over the rough places, but yet was so quiet and modest in her daily living that few realized her sterling worth.

Now that she has passed on to be with other friends we are pleased to see the announcement that the Lutheran Mission will shortly begin construction of a chapel to be dedicated to this dear woman's memory. This structure should become a shrine to every beneficiary and friend of Mrs. Kunz.

May the Glory of God rest her soul in peace.

California has been redeemed! The rains have come—every added storm leaving a million dollar prize in rain drops. The country rejoices! Now, with the tourist influx within our borders, it means a great increase of population, who come here choosing to live in comfort and plenty, rather than enduring the hazards of a frozen east. Records of the past few months tell the tale. A half-million persons riding in 180,714 automobiles have crossed the California borders, and a similar condition by rail. There are still great possibilities and increasing opportunities in the state. If, as it is predicted, we are entering upon a period of expansion in business and industrial activity, it may be, with all the news of wars, tragedies, and disasters of various kinds, there is still looming in the sky of promise, more hopeful signs of greater achievement in California under opportunities for stable wealth and prosperity for many thousands more.

If ever there were people "tossed about", shifted from place to place, and in certain lands "dispised and rejected," it is the "chosen" Jew. Ancestors from the beginning of time. Germany is the latest offender, to show hatred toward them. But now, a major emigration of the race back to Jerusalem is to be made; not like the pilgrimage of Moses, who against the powers of old King Pharaoh, journeyed from Egypt forty years in the wilderness toward the "Promised Land". There are about 430,000 Jews in Germany, where life is made very hard for them. If the present movement is successfully financed, approximately 100,000 of the number will be transported and set up in business in Palestine, there to begin life anew. American and English compatriots are putting up the money, with preference given to the young and verile members of the race who are most likely to survive the rigors of such a grafting upon a new tree of life. What a strange commentary on human relations and the fulfillment of ancient prophecy!

THE CHERRY CLIMAX COMES IN FEBRUARY

CHERRIES are eaten all year around in this country, including February, but the peak of their consumption probably comes in this famous month not only because it is the month of George Washington's birthday and we are reminded of the story of his truthfulness about the cherry tree, but because "red" is a pretty color to put in party foods for St. Valentine's Day and Lincoln's birthday. A National Cherry Week is held annually, from February fifteenth to February twenty-second, this year, at a time when housewives are interested, too, in putting some fruit into the diet to offset the effects of the necessarily heavier winter foods.

A Thrift Opportunity

With the current sales of canned cherries it is a good time for the thrifty housewife to stock up on a variety of them. There are two principal types of canned cherries—sweet and sour. There are both black and white sweet cherries. Sour cherries are red. The most abundant black sweet cherries are the Bing and Windsor, and the most famous white ones are the Royal Anne. Sour cherries are usually either Richmond or Montmorency. Sweet cherries are canned unpitted. Sour cherries are always canned with the pits removed.

This is a good season, too, to check up on your cherry recipes, and make sure they include some of the best ways of serving these fruits. The sweet cherries are delicious and decorative for use in salads, and the sour are grand for making cherry puddings and also for serving with meats when their tart flavor is needed.

Here are two new cherry

recipes which you will be glad to add to your repertoire:

Baked Cherry Pudding:

Cream together four tablespoons butter and one cup sugar, add three-fourths cup of milk alternately with the following sifted dry ingredients: one and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Pour into a buttered baking dish. Meanwhile boil together for five minutes the contents of one No. 2 can of pitted red cherries, one-half cup sugar and two teaspoons grated orange rind. Pour this on top of the batter, and bake for about thirty minutes in a medium oven—350 degrees. The dough will rise to the top, the cherries and syrup sink to the bottom forming a sort of sauce. Turn out upside down and serve warm with plenty of cream. This serves eight persons.

Cherry Queen of Puddings:

Four two cups of hot milk over one cup of dry bread crumbs which are fairly fine. Add one-half cup of sugar and two tablespoons butter. Let soak for five minutes. Then add the lightly-beaten yolks of three eggs, and pour into a buttered pudding dish. Bake in a slow oven—275 to 300 degrees—for from forty to fifty minutes, or until a knife, inserted, comes out clean. Meanwhile cook the contents of one No. 2 can of pitted red cherries with three-fourths cup of sugar until the syrup is thick, then cool slightly. When the pudding is done, spread this cherry mixture on top, cover with a meringue made of three egg whites and six tablespoons of sugar. Return to the oven for about fifteen minutes or until the meringue is firm and a delicate brown. Serve cold. This serves eight persons.

Warren-Walker School

The past two weeks have been eventful ones at our school.

Last Friday we had a valentine party. Each of us made valentines and placed them in a pretty box. Just before lunch they were given out. Mrs. Walker planned a surprise for us. She gave everyone a lovely heart shaped cookie as her valentine. Tuesday afternoon we accepted an invitation from the Pacific Beach Woman's club to furnish the music for them. Three groups of children sang. The primary children sang four songs which were announced by Lloyd Louis Lauson. Maurice Read, who is six years old, sang a solo "The Broom". The little children in the rhythm band played "March Militaire" by Schubert. The intermediate and upper grades sang two songs "The Mill" and "Johnny Schmoker". Our last number was a trio by Gwendolyn, Howard and Kenneth Harvey.

We are happy to have Bobs Achenbach, who was with us last fall, return to our school.

ASSESSOR NAMES HAROLD P. REQUA AS CHIEF DEPUTY

Harold P. Requa sr., 47, real estate broker, former San Diego banker and for years active in San Diego county civic affairs, late Tuesday was named chief deputy of the county assessor's office by Crowell D. Eddy, county assessor. He assumed his duties Thursday.

The new appointee, Eddy said, has not been identified with any of the factions or controversies concerning the assessor's office and his appointment was not solicited.

Requa came to this country in 1893 from Minnesota and was for 20 years affiliated with the Southern Trust & Commerce bank and Bank of America, the last few years as manager of the National City branch.

He was mayor of National City from 1928 to 1932 and has been identified with the San Diego county development federation since its organization. For more than seven years he has been a real estate broker. He formerly was chairman of the board of directors of the county Y.M.C.A.

CO-ORDINATING COUNCIL MAKES RECOMMENDATIONS

A recreational center at Cabrillo school is no doubt due to the effective work of the Co-ordinating Council which meets monthly at the Point Loma High school. There will be tennis courts and other facilities for games. Flood lights will make night games possible.

Harold T. Kimball, principal of Cabrillo school, and Father Manuel F. Rose, of St. Agnes church, are largely responsible for the culmination of the recreational project.

Police in the beach areas report an improved condition among juvenile delinquents. Since some very fine men have volunteered as leaders for the various recreational activities, the boys are gradually leaving the streets for games.

Recommendations of the council are as follows:

1. Requests for funds for a $25,000 gymnasium at each of these schools: Point Loma, Memorial and Hoover.
2. Requests for decent lavatory facilities at the beaches.
3. Requests for provisional life guards at the beaches.

The council was unanimous in agreeing that physical equipment for recreation is essential and leadership for additional groups is vitally necessary.

The next meeting will consider plans for summer recreational facilities, such as camp at beaches. It is expected that a far reaching effect will be noticed due to this meeting.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK KNOX

Chicago Publisher Mentioned for Republican Nomination for President, and His Wife, Taken on Holiday Vacation in Washington.

Frank Knox Is Fighting Editor

With Pen and Fists He Upholds Editorial Independence.

Not many years ago it was customary, and sometimes a necessity, for every newspaper office to have one member of its staff who bore the title of "fighting editor." Most of the leaders of American journalism grew up in that school, including Frank Knox, the Chicago publisher, who is the "favorite son" of Illinois Republicans for the presidential nomination this year.

Knox got into the newspaper business by accident. As a trooper in the Rough Riders in the Spanish war he wrote letters home to his anguished mother and proud father. The latter had them printed in the "home-town" newspapers. When Knox returned from the war, both papers in Grand Rapids, Mich., offered him a job. He joined the staff of the Grand Rapids Herald and quickly discovered that not all the fighting was done in a war.

One day an irate citizen who objected to a crusade the paper was carrying on rushed into the shop to "clean up the editor." Knox launched himself into the fray and, with the aid of another reporter, succeeded in propelling the intruder down the stairs. Thereupon, the "fighting editor," who had armed himself with a fifteen-pound copy of Webster's dictionary, heaved it after him. It happened to strike the angry citizen squarely on the head and knocked him out completely.

A few years later Knox, with John A. Muehling, bought the Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., News. At that time the "Soo" section was one of the toughest in the country. It was a dull day when there was not an affray of some kind. Knox began a "cleanup" crusade, fearlessly investigating, printing the facts and naming names. Finally he forced withdrawal of the license of the "big shot" of the town.

The "big shot" himself broke the news by announcing his intention to "finish that red-headed editor." Knox got his first intimation of trouble in the composing room when a reporter "tubed" a warning to him that the racketeer was on his way upstairs in spite of all they could do. Recalling that a surprise attack is often the best means of defense, Knox raced to the head of the stairs, met his adversary just as he reached the top, and anticipated his assault with an uppercut to the chin which toppled him down stairs again. A passing policeman took the man to the hospital.

There was nothing funny whatever about Knox's next conflict with the underworld of the "Soo." Somebody stood on the sidewalk across the street from his office and plunked a bullet through the window near his desk. The bullet hole was still there when Knox sold the paper in 1912 and moved to New Hampshire.

On another occasion a drunk, armed with a carving knife, called to "carve up the editor." Knox was in a nearby cubby-hole office, cut off from all means of escape. He advanced on the man with a demand that he "drop that knife and get out." At the same time Knox was ready to leap the counter, sprint or fight, if necessary to uphold his personal objection to being carved up by anybody. To his astonishment, however, the man pocketed his knife and walked out without another word.

Present day editors rarely ever have such experiences. There has been a change, not only on the part of the reading public but in the newspapers themselves. Without fear or favor, editors of the fighting type of Knox now carry on their crusades through the publication of facts and fair interpretations, knowing that those who disagree with them nevertheless recognize their sincerity of purpose in the service of the public. His battle to preserve a free press under NRA is well known to his newspaper colleagues.

Knox Versatile Out-of-Door Man

Business Man, Editor, Party Worker Keeps Fit as He Works Hard.

In Frank Knox, the Chicago publisher, Illinois Republicans, who have unanimously endorsed him for the Republican nomination for President, have offered to the country the most versatile man in public life since Theodore Roosevelt. Unlike Roosevelt, however, Frank Knox has had an outstanding business and professional career and has never held public office. He is recognized as one of the best business men in the newspaper business. As an editor, his editorials have revealed an intelligent, alert and vigorous personality which have made him a public figure. In the metropolitan press of today such a combination of business acumen and editorial ability in one man is uncommon.

While engaged in making a success of his newspapers, Knox has achieved distinction in many other directions. He made an enviable record as a volunteer soldier in two wars. He has been in politics for thirty years, serving as precinct worker, state chairman, national convention floor leader for a Presidential candidate and has stumped two-thirds of the Union for national, congressional and state candidates.

On business, financial, economic, social welfare and political issues, Knox has always been on the liberal and progressive side of the argument. His public record of battles against monopoly, for social justice, for the betterment of farm and labor conditions and against un-American, coercive policies, fully attest this fact. In all his endeavors he has manifested vision and vigor as well as a keen sense of moral and spiritual values.

Knox plays as he works and it is in his out-of-door life that he has shown a versatility even greater than that of Theodore Roosevelt. Knox has not only been a hunter and a fisherman, but has paddled his own canoe through most of the rapids of the upper Great Lakes. He has driven his own pack train over the plains and mountains of half a dozen western states, ridden horseback over the mountains of New England and has followed a "chuck wagon" and helped the Apaches in their fight round-up. He has visited every Indian reservation in the country. Knox can sail a boat, run a launch or automobile. He was an early devotee of the ski, the skate and the toboggan and is an expert swimmer. Nowadays he packs a heavy bag of golf clubs and has used them on links in all parts of the country.

Early in his married life Mr. and Mrs. Knox explored the Great Lakes and Hudson Bay country. Moose and deer, trout and the "muskie" fell before their prowess with rifle and rod. Mrs. Knox proving an expert fly-fisherman. From his log cabin home on the St. Mary's river, Knox went to work or to cruise in his launch, sailboat or canoe. There he learned the ice and snow sports. In New England he added horseback riding to his accomplishments. As a member of the Board of Indian Commissioners he made his vacations riding expeditions to the out-of-the-way Indian reservations with Mrs. Knox. They studied the Indians and took steps in Washington to remedy their living conditions, an interest they still continue.

While engaged in this work, Knox cleared the Montana range of 30,000 useless wild horses which were canned and sent to Japan. In their place he had the army remount service send blooded stallions to be bred with the rugged cow and Indian ponies of the Northwest. The result has been better mounts for the army and better horses for the Indians.

Although Knox has never held public office, with this record in front of them, Illinois Republicans do not hesitate to proclaim the qualifications of their candidate as an all-around, up-to-date, constructive man and statesman.

STATE CAPITOL BUILDING AT POINT LOMA HIGH

(By David Robinson)

The capitol building at Sacramento now is within the halls of Point Loma High school. To be sure it isn't the actual building, but one impressive enough to have been exhibited within the Palace of Education at the San Diego Fair.

An interesting story centers around this model, which is approximately six feet in height and about eleven feet in length. Students of the Sacramento High schools built this replica to be used as a representative of their city in the Exposition. When the Exposition closed it seems that adequate funds for shipping the model back to its home were lacking.

Mrs. Vesta Muelheisen, former president of the board of education, and one who is always thinking of the betterment of our schools, felt that this miniature would be a valuable asset for one of the city schools. Point Loma High school seemed to be the most suitable location for the model, as its halls afforded adequate space to display the project.

Point Loma High school students to show their appreciation, will endeavor to hold the standards of the school up to those for which the capitol stands.

POULTRY HELPS.

By E. E. Steele.

Leg weakness is a term commonly used to describe a condition of birds in which there is unsteadiness of gait or inability to stand.

It is not a specific disease, but is a symptom associated with a number of diseases.

Among the causes may be mentioned the various infectious diseases which produce extreme debility, such as cholera and the cholera-like diseases, fowl typhoid, coccidiosis, tape worm infestation and white diarrhea of chicks. Other causes are mineral and food poisons, including those of vegetable and animal origin, rickets from lack of lime salts in the feed, polyneuritis from lack of vitamins in the feed, close confinement of growing chicks, and paralysis.

An effort should be made to determine the cause, infectious disease or poison and treat accordingly, if deficiency in feed elements is the cause, feed a proven mash feed, plenty of fresh greens and ground oyster shell.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

"Dogma and Gnosis" is the title of the fourth of the series of forum lectures on "The Esoteric Tradition" at Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma. The speaker this Sunday, February 23, is Helen Savage. Mrs. M. M. Tyberg will assist in answering questions.

"There is no dogma without its corresponding truth. But, unfortunately," declares Miss Savage, "the reverse is also true: there is no truth that has ever been given to the world that has not been converted into a dogma. We seem to have a dogma-complex, so to speak, and we are as much crippled by it, if we only knew it, as we are by many other things in this complex-ridden world. 'Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free,' said Jesus (John 8, 32). How may we know the truth? Has Jesus set an impossible task before us?" This is the problem that Miss Savage will discuss and answer from a theosophical standpoint.

O Lord, the hope of Israel, all that forsake thee shall be ashamed, and they that depart from me shall be written in the earth, because they have forsaken the Lord, the fountain of living waters, Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved: for thou art my praise."

SYNOPSIS

John Spencer and his cousin, Geoffrey Bohun, are vacationing in Austria. Geoffrey is a gifted portrait painter but prefers to paint landscapes. While strolling in the forest, John hears English voices, and decides to investigate. From cover he finds four men burying a man in green velvet, evidently, had been murdered. Pharaoh is the leader of the gang; the others are Dewdrop, Rush and Bugle. Unfortunately, John makes himself known to the assassins by dropping a letter with his name and address. He tells Geoffrey and his chauffeur, Barley, of his adventure. Geoffrey, realizing that John's life is in danger, declares he must vanish. Spencer discovers that the liver of the murdered man corresponds to the liver of the servants of York castle, and tells Countess Helena, mistress of the castle, what he had seen. With Geoffrey and Barley, John starts for Annabell, a nearby village. They encounter Pharaoh. In making their getaway they exchange shots with the gang, without serious result. They arrive at Plumage farm, on the York estate, where Lady Helena had requested John and his cousin to meet her. She reveals to them that her father had converted his immense fortune into gold and hidden it away in a secret vault in the castle. Knowing that his son, Valentine, Helena's brother, was incapable of controlling the fortune, he had revealed it to Helena alone just before his death. In some manner the news leaked out, and Pharaoh is after the treasure. They planned that Geoffrey and Barley would go to Salzburg to watch for Pharaoh, while John was to remain at Plumage, patrolling the roads about York from dusk to dawn. Several nights go by without important incident. John visits York castle and finds that Helena's brother, Count Valentine, is there and with him, on most friendly terms, is Pharaoh, as Captain Fanning. Hearing that John is stopping at Plumage, Pharaoh speaks to Dewdrop. John suggests a plot. As dinner is announced, Helena and John make their escape, pursued by Pharaoh's men, encountering many difficulties during the night. They run out of gas.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

If we were now in no peril, our case was sorry enough. Stay with the Rolls we dared not, for the chance that some friend would come by before some enemy seemed to us very slight. Helena's brilliant plan was back in the melting-pot, for her nurse would have kept her counsel, but we could not now summon Geoffrey until we were sure of our host. And the Rolls had to be recovered before we could move. . . . Over all, the knowledge that, until I was healed, I was not only out of action, but could not lift a finger if danger arose, hung like a thunder-cloud.

"Are you sure you can walk?" said Helena.

"Comfortably," said I. "And if I saw Pharaoh coming, I quite expect I could run. The burning question is where to look for a lodging that's not by the side of this road."

Together, by the light of the torch, we studied the map. Upon this there was shown a farm, called Holy Tree. So far as we could make out, it stood some seven miles off.

Though I was tired and in pain, I shall always remember with pleasure our progress that summer night.

We had walked for an hour and a half before the track we were using came to an end. The going was rough and, because I was weary I stumbled, and every time I did so the muscle which I had injured protested with all its might.

"It is useless," said I, halting. "We must wait till the dawn comes in." I stepped to a mighty beech and flung the clothes I was wearing down at its foot. "You must lie down here, my lady, and take some rest. And Sabre and I will watch."

"I see," said Helena, slowly. Then she put up her hands and slid my coat from my shoulders and drew it clear of my arms. "You've got to change," she said and, despite my protests, insisted on helping me into dry clothing. "Now you lie still," said Helena, lighting my torch. "I'm going to get some leaves."

Three times she went and came with her coat full of dry leaves. These she poured into a hollow by the side of the beech. I found there an ease of body which I had not expected that night. And she sat down behind me, with her back to the trunk.

"When we get to Holy Tree, I'm going to borrow some lotion and rub your back. I shall tell them we're brother and sister, so remember to treat me rough. It's really important, John, if you value my name. If you're polite, they'll know that you aren't my brother and then my reputation will cease to exist."

The fluting of a bird woke me, and a glance at the leaves above me showed that the dawn was up.

At once I rolled on to my side, but Helena's lodgment was empty and she and Sabre were gone. Since I was very foul, I determined to find some water before she returned.

My back was stiff, as was natural, but to my relief I found I could walk with ease, so I set off towards the clearing, for there, the night before, I had heard the song of a rill.

When I had found this, I bathed my head and my hands, but before I had finished this very simple toilet, Sabre gave tongue beside me and then stood moving his tail and looking the way I had come.

A moment later my lady stepped out of the woods.

"How's his back?" said Helena, taking her seat on a tree-stump.

"Stiff," said I, "but better."

"Rest is the medicine," says she. "We simply must find a farm. Besides, I want my breakfast."

"God send it you quick," said I. "We must go on walking east; but if after half an hour we don't strike a path or something—"

"I've struck one," says she. "I don't know where it leads to, but I think we might try and find out."

Nearly an hour had gone by when we saw before us no farm, but a little, time-honored cottage, standing in a glade of the forest, with a garden of flowers about it.

"Bread and milk," said Helena, turning a glowing face. "And honey, perhaps—there's a beehive."

We were 40 paces away, when a young woman entered the doorway and stood looking into the garden allight with the sparkling flowers. For a moment she stared upon them. Then she leaned against the jamb, put her arm up to her eyes and began to weep. Helena and I stopped dead.

"Then—"

"You stay here," she said quietly, "and I'll go on and see what the trouble is. Perhaps we can straighten it out in return for a meal."

Twenty minutes went by before I saw her again, and then she came out of the garden with the lass that had stood at the door. The latter was smiling now.

For a moment the two stood speaking.

Then the woman dropped a curtsey and started across the forest in evident haste.

Helena beckoned to me, and I got to my feet.

As I came towards her—

"The trick," she said, "has been done. Our hostess has gone for petrol, and when she comes back in two hours, she's going away for good—for three days, at least, to Salzburg. Our host, however, will remain: he's inside now, in the very best of humors and finding our use of his cottage an excellent joke."

I followed her into the cleanest of tiny kitchens, all bright with old wood and copper and smelling of sweet wood-smoke. Beneath the open window a table was laid with our breakfast.

Sabre was lying on the flags in front of the hearth, and a pretty, fair-haired baby that might have been two years old, was seated beside the Alsatian.

Helena sat down by the infant and drew him on to her lap.

"Max," she said, "this is my brother. He's rather nice."

"And our host?" said I.

Helena looked up, laughing.

"This is our host," she said. "If you had any manners, you'd come and give him a kiss."

CHAPTER V

The Forester's Cottage.

"Convention be darned," said Helena. "All right," I said. "I can't help it. Do what you like. If the Countess Helena of York is determined to dwell in a solitary, two-roomed cottage with an imitation brother, an infant-in-arms and a dog—"

"Till your cousin arrives, she is. And now listen to me. Freda's man is in Salzburg; he's lying in hospital there and gradually getting better of a fever which nearly carried him off. Yesterday she got a letter, saying that now she might visit him, but that on no account must she bring with her the child. I imagine there's a risk of infection. Well, that provision tore it, for she's no one to take the child. And that is why she was weeping. . . ."

"I offered to care for the baby and to give her a present as well, if my 'brother' and I might stay here until her return. She simply jumped at the bargain—she's gone for petrol and when she leaves for Salzburg she'll take a letter to your cousin. I need hardly say she's promised to hold her tongue."

"Now if, to serve convention, you'd have thrown such a chance away, we'd better say good-by here and now. You're jealous of my honor. Well and good. If you weren't, we shouldn't be here. It is because you respect me, because you're so very anxious that I shouldn't put a foot wrong, that I like you and trust you."

"All right," I said slowly, and hardly knew my own voice. "I'll play the pretty game."

When Freda returned she was heavy laden, for she bore two gallons of petrol which she had begged of the farmer that sold her milk; and as well she brought two chickens and a basket of new-laid eggs. What tale she had told I know not, but I think that it served her turn, for we were not once molested by curious eyes. She had little time to spare, if she was to catch the train which would bring her to Salzburg that night.

I took my ease for the most of that day, but while I am sure the repose did much for my back, it was Helena's use of the lotion that actually healed the strain.

"Tonight," said I. "I am going to get the Rolls. I'll fill her up at some pump and then find some place near Witchcraft and park her there. Her value apart, we simply must have that car. Without her we're tied by the leg."

"I shall come, too," said Helena. "Sabre can mind the baby and keep the house."

"I think," said I, "that you've done enough today. You've fetched and carried and nursed me and played with Max."

"Oh, John, why wasn't I born to a life like this? The life I lead is a duty—and that's the truth."

"We're not born to idylls," said I. "We've no such luck."

Helena crossed her ankles and laced her delicate fingers behind her head.

"D'you find it idyllic, too?"

"I tried to say so this morning."

Helena knitted her brows.

"Then you said it very badly," she said. "I thought you were fibbing at being here alone with me."

"For me, that's the idyll," said I.

Helena turned her head and gave me a dazzling smile.

It was when we had eaten our supper and the infant was fast asleep that Sabre was given his orders and we set out with the petrol to seek the Rolls. The dusk would come, I judged, by the time we had crossed the clearing and gained the track, and that was just what we wanted, for so we could use the daylight, yet be wrapped in the cloak of darkness by the time we came to the road. For all that, I was none too easy, for, if by some evil chance, friend Pharaoh had found the Rolls, his instinct might well have suggested that we should return at nightfall to try to recover the car. And if he was lying there, waiting . . .

The nearer we drew to the road, the more I wished for Sabre, for he at least would have saved us from walking into a trap.

Five minutes later, perhaps, the darkness ahead was lightened, and I knew we were approaching the road. With my right hand upon my pistol, I moved like any shadow along the side of the track.

Arrived at its mouth, I waited, straining my ears. So perhaps for three minutes. Then I stole round the corner and on to the edge of the road.

The Rolls was gone.

I was up betimes the next morning and had shaved and bathed and dressed before Helena called to me to know if I was awake.

First came the caring for Max and the preparation of our breakfast, which occupied our time for about two hours.

In my note I had asked my cousin to bring some food, but, in case he decided to make some—a labor which kept us busy till nearly noon. I judged that my cousin would reach us by five o'clock. And that would be the end of my idyll; with his and Barley's coming, my present estate, my kingdom, must be resigned, my lovely hour would be over, and never so long as I lived should I ever be given another that smelled so sweet.

From a covert which we selected we could see the way to Witchcraft, yet could not be seen, for the ground rose up a little, to make a knoll, yet the bracken made us a breastwork through which we could see when we pleased, which no eye looking up from the path could ever have pierced.

As I turned to peer through the fronds—

"You are very impatient," said Helena.

"That's the wrong word," said I. "I can't tell you what's the right one, but it's rather like standing on a platform, seeing somebody off by train."

Helena knitted her brows.

"I know the feeling," she said. "but I don't see how it applies."

"You wouldn't," said I. "Never mind. The train will leave when Geoffrey and Barley arrive."

Again I turned to glance at the shadowy way down which they must come. "I like Mr. Bohun," said Helena.

"He's the best in the world," I cried.

"Well, he'll be here soon—I if you don't keep on watching that path. Watched pots never boil, you know."

"You don't understand," I said, and lay back on the turf. "I don't want Geoffrey at all. I'll be glad to see him, of course. But if he was delayed or something, I—I shouldn't mind."

Some time later Helena suddenly peered through the fronds. "At last," she said. "Enter Mr. Bohun and Barley—with a suitcase in every hand. What do they think this is? The Majestic hotel?"

Security of Fixed Routine Is Need of Nervous Child

Parents of nervous children seldom look far ahead. They naturally want to avoid the nervous fatigue that a long crying spell brings to the high-strung baby. They avoid these spells by relaxing routine, offering choice, teaching the baby to struggle for every advantage he can get, opening the way for him to manage his parents because he can see they are open to management.

For the sake of temporary peace—to avoid a tiring fit of temper, or at the most two or three such spells, these parents shatter the child's whole nervous system. He is only a baby still. He cannot bear the strain of too much choice. Give him the security of a fixed routine, and he will not struggle every day to change that routine. He will know it is impossible. If parents were wise, they would force their nervous baby through the temporary strain of a tantrum or two to avoid the permanent damage of an exhausted nervous system.—Katherine Herring in Good Housekeeping.

Those who would drive at an excessive rate of speed must expect to pay for the privilege, judging from tests conducted by the American Automobile association. Different makes of cars were tested at various speeds, and the ratio of gas and oil consumption spread was found to be about the same. Oil consumption is seven times greater at 55 miles per hour than at 30.—Pathfinder Magazine.

At Birth

The modern mother is confronted with a more baffling problem in protecting her children from the dangers of the world than ever before. Children of today face most of the long established dangers such as fire, poisons and stairs, sharp objects and cutting tools, and in addition nearly 25,000,000 automobiles waylay them on streets and highways. It is certain that the improved methods of recording accidents makes the mother more conscious of their appalling extent than ever before.

One of the first principles of child safety, according to Curtis Billings who writes on "Teaching Your Child to Be Safe" for Hygeia, is the establishment of a safe home by the mother. To have a safe home is at least as important as to have a clean home.

The second fundamental is that safe habits must be painstakingly taught to children. Safe habits cannot be instilled in them by intermittent and impatient scoldings and cross "don'ts," nor are threats of disaster effective in preventing mishaps to children. For instance, children may be taught through actual and repeated demonstrations how to cross a street safely.

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage, Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, must be carefully regulated as to dosage.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

The doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative most families use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

Rev. Myron Insko, superintendent of the Goodwill Industries of San Diego county and Olin W. Gillespie, left Tuesday by auto for San Francisco to attend the annual California Goodwill institute which convenes in that city on the 19 inst. They expect to be back early next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Everiet and G. W. Everiet of Marshalltown, Iowa, have made their home the past six weeks at 4816 Voltaire street and Bert Everiet says will likely stay as long as their money holds out, for Marshalltown has been setting records for his home state as to cold weather.

On Tuesday Mrs. Myron Insko was co-hostess with Mrs. Robert Porter of National City, to the Methodist minister's wives at a luncheon given at the Porter home in National City. The tables were prettily decorated in keeping with Washington's birthday. Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Dunning motored to National City from their home in Santa Ana in time for the occasion.

Police patrolman Harry G. Wright last Sunday, February 9th, completed twenty years of service on the San Diego police department. Harry now has to make up for time out on account of illness, etc., but even after that says he will not be satisfied to retire for he likes the Ocean Beach beat and could find no better community in which to live. Previous to joining the San Diego police dept., 20 years ago Harry was a police sergeant on the Tulsa, Oklahoma force. An enjoyable gathering of friends celebrated the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Shepard from Mitchell, Nebraska, arrived two weeks ago in Ocean Beach for an extended visit with Mr. Shepard's sister, Mrs. C. F. Near, and her family. The visitors spent the year 1915 here taking in the Exposition of that time and there was then only twenty or thirty substantial homes here at the beach so the visitors paid no attention to street addresses but they could drive right to the Near home on Brighton avenue. The afternoon they arrived, they spent several hours "looking" for familiar landmarks and had to make several inquiries before finding their sister's home.

At the meeting of the Point Loma coordinating council held at the Point Loma High school Tuesday of this week the matter of the care of the beaches was discussed and Myron Insko was elected to represent the council at the meeting of the San Diego Beaches association to be held at Cardiff on Feb. 28.

Dr. Louis Burger Talks
At Townsend Meet

The Townsend meeting, held February 17, at the Woman's club, proved to be a very interesting and entertaining assembly, at which Dr. Louis Burger, well known minister and orator spoke.

Being a powerful speaker, he managed to put over points that needed emphasis. "We've gotten far enough to impress Congress with the idea," he said, "therefore we're getting somewhere." He went on to say that highly paid national investigators have inspected headquarters of the Townsend movement, and found not a dollar misappropriated.

He stated that men attacking the plan are falling very wide of the mark, and their excuse is that old people are trying to get something for nothing. "That 200 per. seems to be the bone of contention, as our enemies say we wouldn't even know how to spend it. All we need is a chance, and we'll show them whether we can or not."

It has been said that $200 a month is too much. Dr. Burger says it takes $2400 a year to open and keep a job in the United States; therefore, the $200 a month "isn't a pension, it's a recovery measure."

"People say it's another tax, and we're taxed to death now." Once it gets under way, the transaction tax alone will carry it. Crime will be cut 50 per cent when the plan comes in, by giving our young men a job, and 80 per cent of charity will be cut down.

Concluding his speech, he stated that every good cause has been attacked by its enemy.

One hundred and fifty people were present at the meeting. Refreshments served and dancing followed. The next meeting will be held, March 2, at the Woman's club.

ADVERTISING REVOLUTIONIZED
MERCHANDISING METHODS

In the old days of localized distribution of such essentials as foods and drugs, there was very little advertising designed to familiarize consumers with the merits of different products and brands.

The advent of chain stores revolutionized sales methods, for the soul of this system lies in moving goods quickly in order to keep down inventories and so serve the public better and more cheaply. Advertising was absolutely necessary if a great turnover was to be achieved, and new products were to be marketed on a large scale.

Mass distribution thus required mass advertising—and the result, so far as the family is concerned, is that today many necessities are moved from producer to consumer and retailed at prices that would not have been economically possible without widespread volume consumption which largely resulted from advertising.

Equally important, every time the family food, drug, or clothing bill was cut a nickel, a nickel was liberated for the purchase of other, less essential commodities. The result has been sharply stimulated sales of comforts and luxuries which also involve millions of dollars worth of advertising yearly. It is interesting to note that L. A. Warren, President of Safeway Stores, Inc., definitely attributed the growth of this business to the consistent use of newspaper advertising. "The fact that chain stores," he said, "are believers in advertising has considerably accelerated the pace of their progress—it has enlarged their opportunities to further serve the consuming public."
